Godiva Descendants Gather in Washington, D.C.

The Society of Descendants of Lady Godiva met April 13, 2014 in Washington, D.C., in a festive inaugural meeting that was short on speeches and featured poetry readings, songs and other tributes to our famous ancestor.

Lady General Davine Roberts presided over the gathering, in the historic Army and Navy Club, in a room graciously loaned to us by the Society of the Justiciars. Forty-seven people attended the event. In keeping with the inclusive nature of the Society, members included women and men, and all ages — the youngest person there was 14; the oldest member, whoever he/she was, wasn't telling.

"I could never have imagined that the Society of Descendants of Lady Godiva would have taken wings, flown so far, and grown so fast in just five months," the Lady General remarked after the meeting. "I did not expect this to happen, and I am truly amazed and very excited about our growth." The Lady General has worked tirelessly to get the Society off to a rousing start, and she has been ably assisted by officers and members of the Society who have put in long hours to make sure the club is on a strong membership, financial and philanthropic footing. The inaugural meeting gave these new members a chance to relax and enjoy each other's company: We are cousins, after all.

The Lady General's Message

Dear Members: How quickly it turned to summer, and it seems every day is hotter than the last hot day. Well, things are continuing to be hot and hopping with the Society of Descendants of Lady Godiva since our Founding Meeting on April 13th. We had an excellent attendance, and I thank all those who made the extra effort to be there. I can certainly say that this is a fun group, especially with our entertainment. We enjoyed the reading of original poetry titled "The Legend of Lady Godiva" written by our very own Poet Laureate Dianne Boren and read by our Scholarship Chairman Chrissy Herreid. Our Minstrel General Karen Hall lived up to her beautiful voice reputation by singing Peter and Gordon's hit, "Godiva." Many of us were tapping our toes.

There are numerous people who worked very hard to make our first meeting a memorable one. The list is quite long as you can imagine, and most were thanked verbally at our meeting except for one. Grantham Wood always does a very nice job of showcasing his flower arranging and decorating talents. Since our society meeting followed the meeting of the Order of Descendants of the Justiciars, Grantham was gracious to allow SDLG to continue to enjoy his flower arrangements during our meeting.

Grantham is a member of both societies. Thanks goes to Eric Nielsen and Melissa Fischer for the terrific pictures they took at our Founding Meeting. Corresponding Secretary General Ann Waggaman deserves much credit for the very nice directory which was emailed to members on May 19, 2014.

Many good things have happened since our first applications were processed and approved on October 20, 2013. We are now in the chartering stage of membership, and we are continuing to grow. As of June 1, 2014, we have 172 members with many applications in the works. Our Registrar General Maureen McGowan-Singer and I get referrals, applications and emails almost daily. Our list of Gateway Ancestors is growing and making it easier for prospective members to complete their application. Many thanks to those who have recommended SDLG to others. Don't forget about our Facebook pages, as we have two of them – one closed and one open. Just Google Society of Descendants of Lady Godiva, which is an open group, and Society of the Descendants of Lady which is closed. Please go to the website on Facebook and request permission to be added to the latter group. You can be a member of both groups, if you wish. We are still looking for someone to do a web page for us. If you would like to do this for our society, please let me know.

The Godiva Scholarship is getting off the ground with the sales of insignia, note cards, and prints of coats of arms. You will find ordering forms for these items at the end of this newsletter. The profits from these items are going toward our first scholarship. We will be presenting a $500 Lady Godiva Scholarship during our first year. You will find the Lady Godiva Scholarship Letter in this newsletter. If you know of someone who would qualify, please let them know about the scholarship.

Our next national meeting for the Society of Descendants of Lady Godiva will be on April 11, 2015, at the Army and Navy Club in Washington, DC. It will be a tea and will be held in the Main Ballroom at 3:00 p.m. Please put it on your calendar so that you can make plans to be there. Our Honorary Member LTC Charles Robert Odom is our sponsor again this year, and we are thankful for his sponsorship.

Here is a closing word about Lady Godiva. Not only did she bring about a repeal of the onerous taxes and built churches with Leofric, but she became the mother and ancestor of almost every famous person in Europe, such as Queen Elizabeth II, the Czar of Russia, the King of France, the King of Spain and the King of Bulgaria, among numerous other kings and queens.

B. Davine Roberts

Founding Lady General

Alas, Old Coventry!

Godiva wouldn't recognize even the Coventry of the late Middle Ages. Bigger changes were coming.

Leofric, the Lord of Mercia, and his wife Godgifu (Godiva) helped give the small village of Coventry a firm foundation, leading to its later development as a thriving city. It was not much more than a village when Godiva supposedly made her famous ride; the image below right, for example, shows late medieval streets that would have appeared several hundred years later. But she would no doubt have been pleased with her town's progress through the centuries.

Coventry had been the site of an old Saxon nunnery for several centuries when, in the early 11th Century, the convent was destroyed by King Canute. Leofric and Godiva built a Benedictine monastery and church in 1043 on the old site and dedicated it to St. Mary. The couple made Coventry one of their major residences (they owned property in numerous locations), and gave St. Mary's priory and church a rich endowment. When Leofric died, he was buried in St. Mary's. Godiva's resting place is not known, although it is likely she was interred alongside her husband when she died several years later.

In 1102, St. Mary's was raised to cathedral status; the building was expanded extensively over the course of the next century. Meanwhile, Coventry's trade in textiles, particularly wool, had blossomed, and the town also specialized in other industries such as glass-making. Coventry prospered.

Unfortunately, Godiva and Leofric's church did not survive Henry VIII's time. When King Henry took over Catholic Church property in the 16th Century, he gave the people of Coventry the option of buying back their cathedral. The people were unable to raise sufficient funds, and the building was demolished. Pieces of the ruins were used for other construction. It was the only English cathedral to be destroyed during the Reformation, Coventry continued to enjoy commercial success, becoming a manufacturing center by the 20th Century. Unfortunately, its concentration of armament plants made it a target during World War II: The town was singled out for a massive bombing attack. On the night of November 14-15, 1940, German bombers nearly leveled the city center. Many of the old medieval buildings, including the (by then) Cathedral of St. Michael's, were destroyed. The attack killed 568 people and destroyed most of the city's factories. With the exception of London and Plymouth, Coventry suffered more damage than any other British city during the attacks.

During the years after the war, the city recovered and rebuilt, in modern style; the ruined St. Michael's Cathedral was left as a park and a new cathedral was completed in the 1960s. Old and new mix (some would say "clash") in the Coventry of today.

But Lady Godiva is not forgotten. The Godiva Procession, featuring a lightly-clothed young person on a horse, began sometime in the 1600s. Originally a boy played the role, but eventually women began to be cast. The tradition continued (regularly, not necessarily yearly) through the Victorian era and into the 20th Century, ceased during the 60s, but was revived in the late 1990s. The procession is now part of the yearly Godiva Festival.

While Godiva would probably be puzzled by this lively "tribute," one hopes she would appreciate the townsfolk's remembrance of a legend connected with Coventry's early history.

Lady Godiva, by Jules Joseph Lefebvre.

The Society's Got Talent! Members keep their first meeting lively, with poetry readings, singing and more.

At the inaugural meeting, spirits were high as members shared their experiences getting the Society started. Attendees also kept the focus on our ancestor. Scholarship Chairman Chrissy Herreid, pictured at left, gave a lively reading of "Lady Godiva," an original poem by our Poet Laureate Dianne Boren. Members expressed gratitude to hardworking founders such as Lady General Roberts and Keeper of the Roll Maureen McGowan-Singer for putting in hundreds of hours researching gateway ancestors, getting the word out to new members and complying with U.S. legal requirements for a successful club, such as applying for charitable organization status. Members snacked on treats provided in table favors designed by Adornments Officer Madeline Alworth: little boxes featuring the Godiva Society insignia and containing (of course) Godiva chocolate.

Displayed for sale were note cards and prints featuring the Lady Godiva insignia and the coats of arms of Mercia and Thorold, which are the arms most closely associated with Lady Godiva. Proceeds from the sales of the coats of arms will go to the Society's scholarship fund. The coats of arms were painted by Medieval Artist Patsy Bass. (Cards pictured below.)

Minstrel General Karen Hall, at right, wowed the crowd by singing a terrific a cappella rendition of "Lady Godiva," the 1966 popular song by Peter and Gordon. Members swayed in their seats and sang along quietly, but Karen's voice held everyone's attention. Her performance captured the celebratory mood of all.
